

Dance's Embrace

Joshua Ching

Let my fingers
Intertwine a new flame
Inside of us.
Let our bare soles touch the grass
Setting it ablaze with every step.
Let our embers dance
In the vast twilight
Where night and day tease one another.
Let our fire swallow us whole,
Protecting us with it's iridescent flame
While our arms imitate
The warmth of our glow.
Let the lavenders gather as they watch
Our hearts, our souls,
Burning brightly,
Creating a new sun
Full of intimacy and love.
Let us shine
In the distant fields
Far from common roses.
Just you and me,
Peacefully together.
