

Not the Whole Rainbow

Lily Vlug

I wish I could run away,
Just for one moment,
To escape harassment for once,
The looks,
The words,
I want to feel safe,
But I can't,
Because I'm not a boy who likes a girl,
I'm not a boy at all,
Which makes it hard to handle the love for a girl, who just wants one colour not the whole rainbow.

You're slowly taking over my mind,
Little by little yet I can't escape,
The look of your smile,
The look in your eyes,
The sound of your voice,
But you don't want me.

He bleeds out blue while I bleed out pink,
Cause life is still so stereotypical,
But you want the blue blood not me.

When I got outed by your friends you were there,
You comforted me but you never liked me,
You brushed your fingertips through my hair,
But you never liked me,
You held me tight,
But you never liked me,
Why couldn't life be perfect for once,
Why did I have to fall for a straight girl,
Yet I can't change her,
But I can't change my love for her.

And as most of us were told as a child,
You can only like one colour,
Not the whole rainbow.
