

MY DREAM

Vicky Fan

My dreams blossom like a garden of vibrant flowers in my heart, their fragrance filling the air. They sail like ships with unfurled sails through the vast ocean of my mind, navigating the powerful waves. They sparkle like distant stars racing across the night sky, revealing the boundless allure of space. So, what truly is my dream? I cry out to the endless blue sky: to journey and explore the world!

Remember Mr. Fogg from "Around the World in Eighty Days"? He travelled through the world of wonders and marvels, which made me very curious about our diverse and colourful world. Since then, the dream of circumnavigating the world took root in my heart.

I dream of visiting the "City of Light," Paris, to enjoy the beautiful views along the Seine River and create lasting memories near the iconic Eiffel Tower. In the vibrant streets of the "City That Never Sleeps," New York, I yearn to witness the bustling hustle and bustle. Egypt beckons me to behold the awe-inspiring pyramids and the enigmatic Sphinx firsthand, delving into the ancient lore of pharaohs and their legends. The Arctic's icy embrace calls to feel its bone-chilling cold and marvel at the breathtaking Northern Lights. Across the plains of Africa, I crave to witness the majestic spectacle of wild animals on their epic migrations.

I also aspire to climb the Great Wall of China, standing metaphorically on the shoulders of history's defenders, imagining their valorous guardianship of the frontier. Moreover, the boundless Sahara Desert calls me to witness its sun-baked golden sands slipping through my fingers, embarking on camelback to unravel its mysteries alongside local guides...

Of course, travelling the world isn't just about admiring landscapes; it's about embracing diversity, learning languages, and immersing myself in various cultures. I yearn to savour global cuisines, celebrate diverse festivals, and connect with people from different corners of the earth to understand their dreams and aspirations. Realising this dream won't be a walk in the park. It demands dedication, hard work, and financial planning. Yet, I am confident that with perseverance, I will tread the globe, capturing its beauty through my lenses and cherishing the warmth of its people with an open heart.

Dreams are the lighthouses guiding our ambitions, fuelled by determination and resilience. They inspire us to aim higher and strive harder. So, I will embrace my dreams as both my compass and my challenger, navigating towards fulfilment with unwavering determination.
